Protected business
End Point Protection

Liquid Intelligent Technologies brings you End Point Protection, an endpoint data backup service that enables you to back up, protect and quickly recover business-critical data on employee laptops and desktops.

Once installed, End Point Protection works in the background, automatically and securely backing up data to Liquid Intelligent Technologies's secure pan-African cloud.

End Point Protection has been protecting endpoint data for some of the world's largest enterprises since 2008.

Benefits:

- End Point Protection provides best of breed technologies, ensuring you can secure storage of your data, giving you innovative ways to use and manage your backups.
- Uncompromising security in Liquid Intelligent Technologies's state-of-the-art data centres
- Continuous peace of mind, with backups continuously and automatically being created for every file on every device
- Restore data instantly to any device, at any time, from anywhere, whether on company devices or employee-owned devices
- Affordable and flexible subscription based packages, therefore no major upfront capital expenditure is required
- Easy to set up so there is no need for IT personnel in smaller companies. In enterprises one IT administrator can easily manage over a thousand users

Features:

- Working silently in the background, End Point Protection causes no disruptions or delays in productivity.
- Secure handling of data during backup and storage to the cloud using industry leading encryption methods
- Simple application interface, lightweight and does not consume computer resources on your device
- Advanced backup management tools available to Administrators in Enterprise versions
